RAC Grants Raatz Fund To KWAR-FM

A memorial fund honoring Don Raatz will be used to purchase new equipment for campus radio station KWAR-FM. This was the unanimous decision reached by the Religious Activities committee at its meeting yesterday afternoon.

An oscillator making possible reception of the FM broadcasts on AM sets and a new control board are the items to be acquired with the money from the fund according to Ev Streng, senior and station manager.

'Improvement Tribute'

Streng

"Don was active and interested in the station," said Streng, "and we feel that the improvements to the station will be a fitting tribute to him."

The fund, collected under the direction of Student Senate, amounts to about $200 and represents the contributions of Wartburg students, St. Paul's congregation and other individual donors. It was turned over to the Religious Activities committee with the Senate recommendation that it be used for a single definite purpose.

KWAR Does Not Solicit

Because many other solicitation programs emanate from the college, KWAR has been asked not to solicit outside donations and is operating on a limited budget, Streng revealed. Thus the action enables improvements that would otherwise be out of the question.

"The oscillator will greatly improve the service of the station to the college and the community," Streng asserted. "Once equipped with the oscillator, KWAR can be received on any standard AM set, within a two- or three-block radius."

ACP Awards Tales First-Class Rating

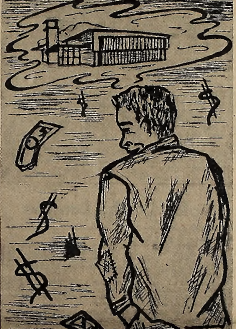
First-class honor rating has been awarded to the 1952-53 editions of Castle Tales, campus literary magazine, by the Associated Collegiate Press.

Edited by Ted Heinecken, present editor of the TRUMPET, the publication received the highest rating in its five-year history. The magazine lost only 100 points of 1500 in the ACP evaluation and criticism.

Ranking among the 18 top college literary magazines in the nation, four of which received All-American ratings, Castle Tales collected highest scores in the editorial standards and content balance departments.

Christmas Social Season Hits Campus

Dig Deep – Help Build The Union!



. . . $3,000 By Spring?

By Fred Gonnerman

Wrapped in tradition, Christmas at Wartburg will begin to unfold on campus next week with a multitude of seasonal programs, group parties, spontaneous caroling sessions and countless decorations.

First major program on the extensive party schedule will be the all-school Christmas party sponsored by the junior class next Saturday, Dec. 12, at 8 p.m. in the Little Theater. Feature of the evening will be a scavenger hunt through Waverly.

Naumann To Give Readings

Also planned is a round of carols and the annual visit by Santa Claus. Following tradition, Dr. G. J. Neumann, head of the English department, will entertain the group with selected seasonal readings. Refreshments will be served.

Neumann

On Dec. 13, at 8 p.m., the scene will shift to the stage of the Knights gymnasium, where the Wartburg Community Symphony orchestra, the Wartburg choir, Castle Singers and the Knights Chorale will combine to present a Christmas service of praise and adoration.

According to Herb Engelbrecht, program chairman, the elaborate set will establish a wintery atmosphere outside a church from which the various numbers are presented by the musical organizations.

Chi Rho Program Dec. 17

Chi Rho will present its annual Christmas program in the gymnasium at 8 p.m., Dec. 17. As is customary, the program will include a candlelight service, men's choir and faculty speaker.

"Aria da Capo," a one-act play by Edna St. Vincent Millay, will be presented by Wartburg Players in the Little Theater during convo on Thursday, Dec. 17.

The campus itself will also be transformed with a variety of decorations sponsored by organizations and housing units.

According to Jacqueline Reents, chairman of the decorations committee, "Every group, housing unit and class is urged to participate in the beautification program. However, because of the lack of sufficient funds, there will be no contest as in recent years."

Statuette To Be Shown In Library Room Mon.

On display for the first time, a statuette of the Virgin and Child will be exhibited in the periodical room of the library beginning Monday, according to Miss Helen Wright of the art department.

This Christmas gift from the art department to the college is a reproduction of a 14th-century French sculpture, and was purchased with fees charged for art services.

Tryouts For Play To Be Held Thurs.

Tryouts for Philip King's "See How They Run," a three-act farce set in a vicarage in England, will be held Thursday at 4 p.m. and after chapel in the Little Theater, according to Charles Dickson of the speech department.

The play, which will be presented March 7, 8 and 9, includes roles for six men and three women.

Hulme's Book Acclaimed, Selected For Lists

Reviews of Dr. William Hulme's book, "Face Your Life with Confidence," indicate that the recently published work by the college chaplain is meeting with favorable acceptance, according to Norm Fintel, public relations head.

"Here is a book with some very unusual values," said the Rev. Roy A. Burkhart, counselor from Columbus, Ohio, in his review in the December issue of Pastoral Psychology.

"It includes rich religious resources, fundamental psychiatric insights, and it is a magnificent portrayal of the relationship between leader and learner," he continued.

In addition to its selection as the book of the month by the Pastoral Psychology Book club and alternate by the Concordia Book club, the 232-page work has also been selected as one of the "Big Ten" books on the 1954 recommended reading list for the Luther League literature project.

New Cheer Contest Opened By Senate

Open to all Wartburg clubs and individuals, a cheer contest has been inaugurated by Student Senate to promote new yells for the basketball season.

Prizes will be awarded for the best entry. The winning club will receive $5 and the individual winner will get $2.

Entries will be judged by the student body at a convocation to be held in the near future. Cheers submitted need not be original, according to Deane Hutchison, junior senator.

Envisioning Wartburg As Political Power, Four Delegates Review NSA Conference

By Cy Wainscott

Wartburg as a rising political power was being pictured by four students as they returned from the National Student association convention on the campus of Iowa State college, Ames, Nov. 20 and 21.

Curtis

The delegation, led by Sid Curtis, student body vice-president and campus NSA co-chairman, and including Del Hutton, sophomore and NSA co-chairman; Deane Hutchison and Paul Reyelts, junior Student Senators, represented the Wartburg student body at the meeting.

Hutchison was elected to the post of regional chairman in charge of student government during the confab.

Hutton

The convention performed the double function of a student government training seminar and a regional political meeting. The sessions included speeches by well-known educators, panel discussions and workshop periods.

The workshop, according to Reyelts, proved to be the most valuable part of the meeting by making it possible "to talk with students from other schools and discuss solutions to our common problems."

Reyelts attended the workshop on "Student Government Projects" and Hutchison worked with "Student Government Administrative Techniques." Hutton took part in discussions concerning the number one problem of all student governments, "Combating Student Apathy," while Curtis delved into the technicalities and peculiarities of "Election Systems."

Hutchisen

All four delegates took part in the political assemblies of the convention, although under the terms of the convention only three were allowed to vote. Assured of equality with such large student bodies as that of the State University of Iowa, the delegation enthusiastically entered into the business of adopting a regional constitution and electing regional officers.

"I only wish," said Curtis, "that we had been better prepared for those elections. With our controlling votes we could have gotten several more Wartburg people elected."

Reyelts

All the delegates were well satisfied with the meeting and said they had gained much that could be applied to the solution of problems on this campus. They all remarked that such meetings are important and that such an organization as the NSA is necessary.

"NSA will soon prove itself to be a very worthwhile thing for Wartburg," said Hutton to sum up the statements of the group. "But until it does, and even after it does, we must work here on the campus to educate ourselves and carry on the work of NSA, so that Wartburg will prove itself good for the organization."

R. Larson To Offer Voice Recital Wed. In LT

C. Robert Larson, tenor and member of the music department, will present four groups of vocal selections in a faculty recital Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Little Theater. Accompanying him on the piano will be Miss Ruth Preusser, also of the music department.

Larson

Haydn's "She Never Told Her Love" will begin the performance, followed by Beethoven's "Adelaide." Included in the second group will be four selections in German by Franz Schubert—"Das Wanderin," "Wohin?," "Halt" and "Ungeduld."

Next on the program are two Italian pieces, "O Lola Bianca" ("Cavalleria Rusticana") by Mascagni and "Salut! Demeure Chaste et Pure" ("Faust") by Gounod.

Changing to songs of a lighter vein in the final group, Larson will sing six selections in English, beginning with Lehmann's "Ah! Moon of My Delight," following with "But Lately in Dance I Embraced Her" by Arensky, "Wild Swans" by Duke, "Rain Has Fallen" by Barber, "The Crying of Water" by Campbell-Tipton and closing with "The Star" by Rogers.

Fintel Takes Trip; To Visit 3 States In Relations Work

Norm Fintel, Wartburg's director of public relations, left Thursday on a series of trips that will keep him off-campus for a week and will find him in Waterloo, Ames, Chicago and Seward, Neb.

Thursday Fintel visited Waterloo high schools during their senior day activities, conferring with students contemplating entering Wartburg next fall.

A trip to Chicago was scheduled for Friday. The windy city was the site of the combined Luther League and Women's Missionary Federation conference on the vocational guidance program of the American Lutheran church.

Sunday the public relations director journeyed to the Iowa State college campus for the opening of the joint district convention of the American College Public Relations association and the American Association of Colleges.

Fintel will join Tom Coleman, director of public relations at the University of Nebraska, and Lloyd T. Johnson of the North Dakota State Teachers college public relations department in a panel discussing the object, methods, organization and operation of public relations departments in colleges within universities.

What's Your Driving Attitude?

Previous to every holiday weekend, newspapers and radios come alive with gruesome forecasts and warnings of death—death that rides the comfortable and convenient rubber tires of an automobile. However, in spite of all the warnings, each holiday weekend still becomes spattered with the blood of between 360 and 491 auto fatalities.

At the present time, a nationwide contest on safe driving is being carried on among college newspapers. Sponsored by the Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty company, the contest intends to educate and promote better college drivers.

Judging of college entries is divided into five divisions—the paper as a whole, editorials, features, cartoons and photographs. Last year, Wartburg received honorable mention ratings for the paper as a whole and safe driving cartoon. This issue of the TRUMPET is the first of two directed toward the campaign.

What is your reaction to any statement that introduces a safe driving campaign? Do you think, "Safe driving? That's fine. I hope my roommate reads that. He must have gotten his driver's license on a punch-board."

Or is your reaction to the challenge of safer driving the personal and sometimes painful question, "Who, me?"

How many times have you heard, or even said to yourself, "They shouldn't let drivers like that on the road. He's endangering the public!"

No matter how true those words may be, the statement itself shows that the speaker should also look at his own driving methods and attitudes. The attitude of each motorist to his own actions and the actions of others has much to do with the accident rate and its causes.

Usually the man that looks so critically at others on the road is simply rationalizing for the little mistakes that he frequently makes and gets away with. It does pay to watch the other driver, but don't become so far-sighted that you can't see yourself.

Take personal tests frequently and don't be afraid to let others judge your score. Be truthful in checking your own attitudes toward the other man on the road. Just because the law gives you the right-of-way doesn't mean you should force possession. Unless law is tempered with common courtesy and proper attitude, that law can become an abuse.

Therefore, in this current pre-Christmas safe-driving campaign, take what is said to heart and examine it in the light of your present practices and attitudes. You can't help anyone else to learn if you don't know yourself—and the only way you can show that you know is by your actions.

It may hurt your pride to answer the "Who, me?" affirmatively—but it may also keep you alive. Make your choice.

Footnotes To Faith:

We Must Be True Slaves To God

By Ray Martin
Greek Department

The idea that we are slaves of God and of Christ is not a very popular one in our day. This concept, however, is more common in the New Testament than is ordinarily realized by most readers of the English Bible. This is true because in the most familiar translations of the Bible the Greek word for "slave" has been translated usually by the word "servant."

Martin

This is true even of the RSV, which does at times, as in Matt. 20:27, use "slave"; but in many instances uses the word "servant" and gives the more correct translation in a footnote (for example Eph. 6:6; Rom. 1:1; Gal. 1:10). In some instances, however, even the RSV has not given the correct translation (as in Luke 2:29 and Luke 17:7-10).

Even if the Bible had not used the specific word "slave" in describing our relation to our God, it does indicate beyond all doubt that we belong to God as completely as any slave belongs to his master.

Not only has God made us and by virtue of that fact do we belong to Him, but in the atoning work of Christ, God has re-purchased us to be His own (I Cor. 6:19-20). In a very real sense then we are God's; we are slaves of God—to live for Him, to have no will of our own but to do His will in all things.

Our complete obligation to God is the aspect of slavery which the Bible emphasizes. The Bible does not mean we are to be cringing and fearful before a threatening and cruel master.

Rather, to be slaves of God in the Biblical sense means that all we are and have and do is God's and belongs rightfully to Him. It means we have no real claim to anything we are accustomed to call our own—except our sin.

It is only as we fully appreciate our obligation to God that we fully understand His Grace. In one of Christ's most interesting and seldom-read parables (Luke 17:7-10), Jesus shows how essential it is that we understand our relationship to God properly.

He concludes that parable, "When you have done everything which has been commanded, say 'we are useless slaves; we have done only what we were obligated to do.'"

In the light of this, you and I dare never demand anything of God. Any good thing we have in life, whether for body or soul, is a gift of His grace, is completely undeserved. This realization should cause our hearts to overflow with gratitude: "O give thanks unto the Lord, for He is good; for his mercy endureth forever."

Behind The WALLS

Always a question in my mind, always a question, but I must ask.

With just a little straining I can remember my pre-freshman days, when I still trembled with anticipation—(and I must say embarrassment, when no one in South Dakota had any idea what and where Wartburg was). My memories of these days include one letter in which was enclosed a 79-page questionnaire on just me.

Cords

Also I easily remember running hither and yon getting transcripts transcripted, and references referred. Now this leads me to believe that students here must be of at least normal intelligence, or at least extreme perseverance. So what I would like to ask is this:

Why, oh, why, did some considerate individual think it necessary to write a note on yon cafeteria wall saying, "Do not stand in the rain . . . " Just at the risk of making a wild statement, I should think that most college students know enough to get in out of the rain!

Quite a brilliant observation by a local student here on Wartburg college campus . . . "Hmmm, Pending must be a pretty popular town. Wonder what state it's in—I see the choir is playing two concerts there."

(I just noticed they're playing one in a suburb too—Afternoon Pending).

Third floor women all joined a new club the other night. Some of the girls from Independence brought it along to contribute to social life this week. Every week one room has to furnish entertainment—you know, some sort of formal tea, food, sewing doll dresses, collecting for Student Body project—just a lot of good, wholesome fun!

This club is called the "Bull" club, and every member has a hoof print stamped on her forehead to signify membership.

Voice Of The Campus

Dear Editor:

At our last meeting on Monday, Nov. 30, we discussed at great length your editorial of Nov. 7 entitled "Students Show Lack of Social Learning." We wish to take this opportunity to congratulate you on your choice of a topic and to express our complete agreement with your point of view.

A letter which agrees with the editor is something of a rarity—but we hope it will serve a definite purpose. We hope it will prove to the student body that many of us, not just an editor, feel that we all are lacking in good old-fashioned courtesy.

We have made definite plans to begin soon with a campaign to improve social conditions here on campus. We hope that you, Mr. Editor, will aid us in this campaign and will continue to perform a useful service by pointing out ills which we may all work to remedy.

Sincerely,
The Student Senate

Cagers Seek No. 3 In Nebraska Tonight

By Dick Lynch

The undefeated Knight cagers go after their third win of the season tonight against another out-of-state club, Nebraska Wesleyan university of Lincoln, Neb.

On Tuesday the Axmen continue their traveling ways at Cedar Falls, taking on Iowa State Teachers college. They return home on Friday to host Simpson's Redmen in the Knights gym.

Tonight's game will be played at nearby Seward, Neb., in the high school gym, since a new fieldhouse at Wesleyan hasn't been completed as anticipated and no other gym in Lincoln is available.

Coach Ax Bundgaard and a squad of 10 men left yesterday for Des Moines and spent the night there, moving on to Seward today. The Knights will return tomorrow after attending church services in Treynor.

Bomhoff

The host Plainsmen, who swept to an impressive 25-3 record last year and worked to the quarterfinals of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics tournament, have a major rebuilding job to perform in readying for Wartburg. Only two veterans, Jim Lightbody and Scotty Willoughby, are on hand from last year's crack outfit.

In its only start so far this season, Wesleyan overcame Dana, 70-62, at Lincoln.

Bundgaard is still uncertain about who will get the starting nod at the guard spots, but Bob Adix will be in the pivot and Barry Bomhoff, whose fine play was a highlight of the Augsburg victory, and veteran Ken Riswold will start at forwards.

Probable Starting Lineups

Wartburg		Nebraska Wesleyan
Ken Riswold, 6'2"	F	Jim Lighthody, 6'
Barry Bomboff, 6'1"	F	Mel Sheary, 6'1"
Bob Adix, 6'4"	C	Lyle Buell, 6'3"
Ted Fritschel, 5'10"	G	Scott Willoughhy, 5'10"
Bob Rubenow, 6'	G	Rollie Wiegers, 6'

Time and Place: 7:30 p.m. Seward Neb., high school gym.

Coaches: Wartburg, Ax Bundgaard; Neb. Wesleyan, Dr. Irvin Peterson.

Average Height of Teams: Wartburg, 6'1"; Neb. Wesleyan, 6'.

I'm Not The Coach, But...

By Stark Wreelism

What is it that makes a team win an athletic contest, or for that matter, lose one?

I suppose everyone has his own opinion on the matter, so I might as well toss in my own. For it seems that lately Wartburg teams of all sorts have set a fad by turning in winning seasons.

I don't mean to be facetious here—ever since the two Wartburgs combined almost 20 years ago a lot of work has been put into building the school's athletic program to a respectable height. But it's an inevitable fact that our efforts in intercollegiate competition have been predominantly frustrating.

Since 1935 Wartburg teams as a whole have collected 316 wins against 434 losses—12 contests were toss-ups. For you statistics-hounds, this averages out to a .422 percentage.

But in recent years this mediocre record has been pulling itself out of the doldrums. Basketball used to be a thing you only whispered about at Wartburg—during the '30's hapless Knight cagers piled up something like 36 consecutive conference losses. Today the Axmen are considered one of the better small-college teams in Iowa.

The same is becoming more and more a truth in almost every phase of the seven-sport program here. But let's get back to the original question—why?

Perhaps the most obvious reason is the fact that the college has grown so much recently. Nevertheless, we consistently schedule and often conquer schools with perhaps twice our enrollment.

My own opinion is that there's something beyond statistics and enrollment that causes a winning season—there's an intangible substance that people refer to as "team spirit." It may sound trite, but it has a lot to do in winning ball games.

Not that teams of the past didn't have this spirit—even a spirited dachshund has trouble whipping a Great Dane. But this year Knight squads seem to be endowed with an unusual quantity of team cooperation and—yes, spirit.

We won a divisional crown with a green, untouted football squad. And the basketball team seems to be headed for even greater heights, although pre-season prospects were anything but bright.

But maybe I'm stepping out on the proverbial limb. Well, I think it's a pretty safe perch—as long as we continue to place teams in competition, and not groups of individuals.

Hatters Build Lead With 4 Victories

With Ken Truckenbrod leading the way, the Top Hat pin crew extended its lead in the college bowling league to two full games by capturing four straight from the Bankers Wednesday evening.

Other results saw the Dairy crew and Hilltop edge Bowl-Inn and Larry's Standard. Meyer's Drug was idle due to the withdrawal from the league of Ritchie Pontiac.

Standings

Team	W	L
Top Hat Cleaners	28	8
Waverly Dairy	26	10
Meyer's Drug	20½	11½
Waverly Bowl-Inn	19	17
Ries Hilltop	15	17

Larry's Standard Service	3½	32½

Four Gridders Awarded North Division Berths

Wartburg, north division champs of the Iowa conference, placed four gridsters on the 1953 United Press all-divisional football team. Luther led the mythical group with five candidates.

The passing duo of Ted Fritschel and Wendy Liemohn, along with linemen Bob Keister and Chuck Schumann, gained recognition for the Knights.

Others picked for the honor team by the coaches include Roger Parrott, end from Buena Vista; Charles Engen, tackle; Bob Lee and Bob Pederson, guards; Kent Finanger and Dave Reque, backs, all from Luther, and Randy Harvey, Upper Iowa back.

O-C, Grossmann Squads Take Early Cage Leads

Off-campus and Grossmann cagers grabbed early leads in the intramural basketball league Monday night in Knights gymnasium.

Meyer's knocked off the Parsons, 24-16, and Wuebbens dumped Grossmann I, 26-19, to share the lead in the National loop. Dividing top-slot honors in the American division are Grossmann III, which defeated the Wolf Pack, 31-23; Grossmann I, which overcame the Ambassadors, 27-23, and the Waverly quintet, which dropped Grossmann II, 37-26.

Other National results show Sixth Street over Grossmann II, 30-19, and the Chic-adees over Hagen's, 35-15. Rounding out American loop action was the Stock Yard Steadies' 29-22 decision over Hagen.

Next Week's Schedule

Monday—American: Ambassadors vs. Grossmann II; Stephenson's vs. Stock Yard Steadies; Hagen vs. Wolf Pack, and Grossmann I vs. Grossmann III. National: Parsons vs. Hagen; Chic-adees vs. Wuebbens; Grossmann I vs. Sixth Street; Grossmann II vs. Grossmann III.

Thursday—American: Wolf Pack vs Stock Yard Steadies; Grossmann II vs. Hagen; Ambassadors vs. Grossmann III; Grossmann I vs. Waverly. National: Waverly vs. Hagen; Grossmann I vs. Grossmann III; Parsons vs Wuebbens; Chic-adees vs. Sixth Street.

5 Lettermen Will Bolster Mat Squad

Coach Norm Johansen has five lettermen returning from last year's squad to top the list of 14 out for the grappling sport this season. A 10-event schedule faces the group that captured second in the Iowa conference meet last year.

The five returning monogram winners are Ev Blobaum, Bob Dirks and Don Johnson, seniors; Paul Reyelts, junior, and Bob Grendahl, sophomore.

Blobaum

Others out for the grunt-and-groan sport include Howard Bose, senior; Reuben Schnaidt, junior; Fred Hermanns, Ivan Viegut, sophomores, and Roger Arjes, Chuck Bichel, Fred Schultz, Wayne Shaw and Jim Woodrow, freshmen.

Following is the season's wrestling schedule, with the conference meet tentatively set to be held at Wartburg March 6.

Fritschel, Reasland Picked Co-Captains

Ted Fritschel and Ray Reasland were recently elected as honorary co-captains by the 1953 football team, according to the announcement made by Coach Norm Johansen.

Reasland sparked the team from the guard spot while Fritschel led the Knights from the quarterback position. Both men completed their last season in Orange and Black togs.

Axmen Sweep Past Auggies, St. Mary's

By Ken Starck

A blistering offensive attack good for 24 points in the final stanza sparked the Knight hoopsters to a 68-55 decision over Augsburg Tuesday evening in the Minneapolis Armory.

It was the local hoopsters' second straight victory in as many starts in the young cage season. The previous win came over St. Mary's, 69-56, Nov. 24 in the Knights gymnasium.

The contest with the Auggies was a nip-and-tuck affair until the last period, with the winners setting the pace most of the way. At halftime the Knights nursed a slim six-point lead.

The Axmen scored only one more bucket from the field than the Auggies but made up for it in the free throw department as they cashed in on 26 charity tosses, eight coming in the explosive fourth quarter.

Playing a rather slow, deliberate style of ball, the Knight quintet meshed 33 per cent of its shots from the field as compared to the losers' 27 per cent.

Ten Years Old, Wartburg Film Service Makes Visual Aids Available To Members

By B. F. Mirtz

Established 10 years ago with only six films, the Wartburg Film service has since expanded to an incorporated business with 350 sound films and an annual turnover of $15,000. The service is maintained by Mrs. John Hiltner and Mrs. A. W. Swensen at offices in the publications building.

Set up in 1943 by several pastors to make visual aids available to their congregations, the film library was incorporated into the Wartburg Film service. Membership is open to any religious organization for a fee of $2.50.

"Our membership is scattered throughout the U.S. and extends into Canada," stated Mrs. Hiltner.

Films Leased And Ranted

Sound films are leased mainly from Concordia, Cathedral, Family and Church Craft companies and are rented out. Everything in the line of religious film strips is handled, but is usually only for sale.

"We almost have an international business," commented Mrs. Hiltner. "We sold some film strips to the president of the Australia synod and a missionary took some strips to Africa."

Although Mrs. Hiltner's and Mrs. Swensen's work is clerical, they also sell the film strips and send out the sound films.

Service Produces Strip

One of the outstanding successes of the film service is its work in helping to produce the film strip "Visualizing Luther's Catechism." The idea originated within the service and a special committee was organized which produced the strip with the aid of several Lutheran church bodies.

"It's surprising that the organization could have grown so much in such a short time, but it does show the progress churches have made toward wider use of visual-aids," Mrs. Hiltner concluded.

'Grapes Of Wrath' On Screen Tonight

"Grapes of Wrath," a 20th-Century Fox production based on the novel of John Steinbeck, will be shown tonight in the Little Theater at 7:30. The leading role is played by Henry Fonda.

"Rated as one of the 10 best social studies films, the story portrays the Okies, who in the 1930's became a symbol of man's failure to give back to the land as much as he has taken from it," stated Paul Knecht, chairman of campus movies.

'Messiah' Excerpts To Be Given Sun.

Haven

Excerpts from Handel's "Messiah" will be presented by the Waverly community choral group in the Waverly high school auditorium tomorrow at 8 p.m., with Lynn Osincup, Waverly businessman, as director.

Participating with the group are approximately 40 students from Wartburg. Soloists are Mrs. C. R. Gillaspie, soprano; Joan Haven, contralto; C. Robert Larson, tenor, and Robert Carver, bass. Accompaniment to the chorus will be furnished by Rudy Inselmann, sophomore, at the piano and Virginia Carlson, sophomore, at the organ.

Class Studies Saund, Studia To Be Changed

Radio techniques class under Charles Dickson, speech department, is in the process of testing the length of the vibration of sound and the isolation of sound from the outside. .

The radio studio will then be soundproofed by hanging heavy drapes and building a soundproof passageway into the studio.

Schicks Have Boy

John Arthur is the name of the 8-lb., 7-oz. boy who was born Monday noon at St. Joseph's Mercy hospital in Waverly to the Rev. and Mrs. Edwin Schick.

The Rev. Schick is a member of the Christianity and Greek departments. The Schicks have a four-year-old daughter, Linda Sue.

10 Organ Students To Present Recital

The music department will present organ students of Dr. E. A. Hovdesven and Warren Schmidt in a recital Monday at 7:30 p.m. in St. Paul's church.

Students of Dr. Hovdesven on the program are Janice Will, Joan Schwefel and Janice Goeman, juniors; Carol Nothdurft, sophomore; Lucile Antholz and Marilyn Maik, freshmen.

Busy Cupid Promotes 2 Campus Betrothals

Two engagements involving Wartburg students took place during Thanksgiving vacation.

Irene Bast, senior four-year elementary teacher from Cedar Falls, became engaged to Ed Paape, pre-the from Milwaukee, Wis.

Trudy Weidler, junior elementary education major from New Hampton, received a diamond from George Freidinger, senior pre-the from Peoria, Ill.

Hagen At Chicago For Orch. Confab

Ernest Hagen, director of the college band and Wartburg Community Symphony orchestra, attended the regional meeting of the American Symphony Orchestra league in Chicago Saturday, Nov. 28.

League members were guests of the Chicago Symphony orchestra. Phases of community symphony orchestras were discussed in panels.
